

Diamond Ebs Esoh is a lecturer, non-profit leader and entrepreneur with over 20 years experience in the cultural and creative industry as a writer, artiste, organizer and promoter. As a lecturer, he taught marketing and other business-related courses to Irish and international students from over 20 countries. He currently serves as Chief Executive of the Global Movement for Change and Project Colourful, an international organization that promotes cultural diplomacy and prepares young people for public leadership. He is better known State-side as the creator and coordinator of Irish-Americans For Obama, a political volunteer group which began recruiting young activists in the early Caucus and Primary States back in 2007 and raised over $100,000 towards the election of the first African American president.

See more at: <http://cameroon-concord.com/news/entertainment/item/3570-cameroon-concord-s-dublin-bureau-chief-appointed-judge-on-cameroon-career-women-awards-in-london#sthash.xyXwZHKG.dpuf>